His Stay of a Few Days in Indiana Stirred the Republicans to Renewed Action -They Now Expect a Larger Plurality Than They Had Four Years Ago.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 24.-The sudden flurry of activity shown by the Democrats during the presence of Democratic National Chairman Taggart in this city last week, and the certainty that it was planned by the chairman and his Indiana friends to induce the national committee to apportion a large part of the campaign fund to Indiana, have had the effect of awakening the Republicans, and their organization has gone to work in a spirit of earnestness that has not been manifested in the present campaign. Party conferences have been held in many parts of the State, the organization has been perfected in some of the close counties where legislators are to be chosen, and each of the district chairmen has been ordered to make a thorough canvass of his district, with a view to discovering weak places if any exist.

The direct result of the visit of National Chairman Taggart has, therefore, been to increase Republican zeal and get elements to work that but for his visit might have remained inactive and certainly would not have been so earnest. Not that the Republican managers have ever doubted that Indiana would be Republican in this campaign. That thought has not entered into their minds, but they realized that, if money is to be poured into Indiana from the national Democratic committee and to be used in the close counties it might jeopard the election of some Republican candidates for the Legislature. It is to prevent this that the new energies have een called into being.

While the Republicans are thus active the Democrats seem to have fallen away from the enthusiasm that was manifested in the meetings which Taggart attended. and something of the old listlessness has again overtaken the party. Democrats and Republicans alike have wondered that the enthusiasm should so soon subside, and have attempted to find a reason for it. but so far it is unaccounted for except by the general statement that the defeats that the party has sustained since 1892 and the general prosperity of the farmers and laboring classes of the State have combined to convince the local leaders that the times are not ripe for a change.

This seems to be confirmed by the reports that are coming in from all parts of the State to the Republican headquarters in this city. Almost without exception they show that there is no discontent among Republicans themselves, and that all the indications point to an increased plurality over that of four years ago. This is the result of two separate factors that are now at work in the State. The first of these is the strong tendency in Democratic counties and in large cities toward the Socialists.
That party is making an exceptionally vigorous campaign, and there is little question but its vote will be increased over that vigorous campaign, and there is little question but its vote will be increased over that of two years ago, when the combined Socialist and Socialist-Labor vote was in excess of 9,000. The increase two years ago was from Democrats almost exclusively and whatever gains are made this year will be from the same party.

The second factor at work for Republican success is found in the rural districts and, paradoxical as it may appear, among the farriagrs who were the most earnest followers of Bryan in his two campaigns for the Presidency. Possibly among these, to a greater extent than among any other class, exists the fear that a change of administrations might lead to a change of administrations might lead to a change of the conditions through which they are now so prosperous. The Democrats have tried to counteract this feeling by speeches and by enormous distributions of literature, but it is admitted by their managers that the farmers have come to look upon Republicanism and prosperity as synonymous terms and that there will undoubtedly be some losses to the party in places where the vote for Bryan was largest four and eight years ago.

there will undoubtedly be some losses to the party in places where the vote for Bryan was largest four and eight years ago.

The Republicans are expecting to gain at least one member of Congress from this State, and they will not be surprised if the delegation is increased by two. The Twelfth district, once the banner Democratic district in the State, has been coming up year after year with a smaller and smaller majority, and two years ago Congressman Robinson was elected by less than 500 majority. The Socialists are making constant gains in the city of Fort Wayne, and this means that Robinson's vote will be smaller this year than two years ago, while the vote jority. The Socialists are making constant gains in the city of Fort Wayne, and this means that Robinson's vote will be smaller this year than two years ago, while the vote for Gilbert, the Republican nominee, is expected to show a substantial increase. Like Robinson, he is young and energetic, popular with the people of the district and is making an unusually earnest canvass.

The Fourth district is also regarded as doubtful. Two years ago it was carried by the Democrats by less than 1,000 majority, and Congressman Griffith, who has represented the district for four terms, be ame convinced that it was only a question of time before he would be defeated and he retired from the race. Lincoln Itix in, a bright young lawyer of North Vernon, is now the party nominee, but it is concoded that he is not as strong a candidate as Griffith, and the Republicans are looking to the district as an inviting field for effort.

The only menace to Republican success in the State, and that is not a menace to the national ticket, is in the feeling that has come out of the contest for Senator Fairbanks's seat in the Senate. Congressman Hemenway is confessedly in the lead for the place, but some of his friends have been very injudicious in their efforts to select candidates for the Legislature favorable to him, and in some places serious factional feeling has resulted. It is known that Congressman Charles B. Landis, Congressman Crumpacker, State Senator Hendee and Gov. Durbin have Senatorial aspirations and that each has friends in the party. To run over them roughshod is galling to them and their friends and the methods invoked in the interest of Hemenway have not been such as to conciliate those whose interests are alike at stake.

Republicans, while admitting that the Senatorial contest is an element to be regretted, believe that the success of the party will not be endangered by it, and they are confidently looking forward to a majority in excess of that of 1900.

ON PAROLE, ROBBED STABLE

And Sold Horse, Harness and Runabout Cheap to Dry Dock Hotel Man. Joseph Cavanagh, 22 years old, was released on parole in July from the Elmira Reformatory after serving a year and a half of a four year sentence for burglary. He was arrested yesterday for stealing from the stable of James Fair, at 83 Ninth from William C. Whitney for $1,000; a runabout valued at $350 and harness worth ·Cavanagh confessed his guilt. Fair's stable was broken into on the avenue, a horse purchased by Mr. Fair

Fair's stable was broken into on the night of Sept. 9. A couple of days ago the police found the horse, wagon and harness in the possession of Charles Hertz, proprietor of the Dry Dock Hotel, on the Bowery. Hertz said that Cavanagh had sold him the outfit for $150.

Detectives Adams, Butler and Keogh learned that Cavanagh had an aunt living at 76 Charles street, and yesterday morning they went around. They had no warrant, and so they waited, one with his eye on the fire escape, one watching the other exits, and one in the hallway. Finally a door was opened, and the detective in the hall slipped into the apartments of Cavanagh's aunt and found Cavanagh asleep in a bedroom. With a sigh of relief, the detective wakened him and said: "Come on with me. Your lig is up." Cavanagh was locked up on a charge of burglary.

CHURCH ROW IN SOUTH AFRICA. Bishop of the A. M. E. Church Going There to Fight Lord Milner.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. London, Sept. 24.—The Rev. Spencer Smith, Bishop of the American Mathodist Episcopal Church of Africa, has sailed from Southampton for Cape Town, where he intends to fight both the British Colonial Office and the Wesleyan Methodist body. The Colonial Office put a veto upon the Bishop visiting pastorates in the Orange and Transvaal colonies, but upon the Bishop delivering to the Colonial Office a declaration that the Church absolutely repudiated insinuations that it was interfering with constituted authority and spreading sedition among the natives, the embargo was removed. Just before sailing, however, the Bishop said the Colonial Office informed him that permission to conduct missions had been rescinded on Lord M lner's recommendation, but the Bishop has determined to proceed to Cape Town, where he will be better situated to deal with his enemies.

The Bishop declares that Lord Milner's action is the direct result of influence brought to bear by the Wesleyan Methodists, who object to the interference by other religious odies in the work of the christianization of the natives. The Bishop says that the Weslevan Methodists attacked the American Methodist Episcopal Church at the first missionary conference ever held in Africa, which sat at Johannesburg in August. All denominations working in South Africa were represented except the American Methodist Episcopal Church, which was charged with fostering race prejudice and logical Expedition. Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Princeton University's Syrian expedition, having received the necessary permission from the Sultan to conduct exploring investigations, has left Constantinople. Prof. H. C. Butler writes en route from Constantinople to Jerusalem. where he joins the other members of the party who left London a few weeks ago.

Prof. Butler intends to conduct archeological inquiries, and he and Prof. Ermo Littman expect to spend a year in researches in northern and central Syria, the Hauran country and the country east of the Jordan. With them are F. A. Norris, a civil engineer, and Dr. R. S. Hooker. They intend to make up a caravan at Jerusalem and start for the interior on Oct. 1 to explore several unexplored regions where they believe are ruins of ancient Graeco-Roman cities. They will visit numerous places more or less known thereabouts and will map the unmapped territory, survey ancient sites, study the architecture by means of photographs, measurements and drawings to scale, and search inscriptions in various Oriental languages in addition to Latin and Greek. expect to spend the autumn east of the Jordan and southeast of the Hauranitis, while they will winter in the Hauran and in the spring move northward, south of Aleppo, between the Orontes and the Euphrates. They will be joined on the march by L. O. K. Prentice, professor of Greek at Princeton, who will specially study the Greek and Latin inscriptions:

ANOTHER MIXED BATHING ROW. London Stirred Because of the Declaration of the Mayor of St. Paneras.

Special Cable Despotch to THE SUN. LONDON, Sept. 24 .- Some years ago the whole British Isles were stunned by an agitation for mixed bathing at seaside resorts. There are now quite a number of places where this is allowed, but it is still generally looked upon as a thing of somewhat dubious propriety.

It may be easily imagined, therefore, what a shock the Mayor of St. Pancras gave London the other day when he proposed that mixed bathing under proper supervision should be allowed in the London municipal swimming baths.

The press has been teeming ever since with letters, mostly deprecating in the especially one item in the Mayor's proposal. He spoke of the advantage of husbands taking their wives and children, and brothers taking their sisters to teach them to swim.

This was sufficient to rouse plenty of protest, for the British public argued that though husbands and brothers might be bathing with their own wives and sisters, yet, unless the principle of one swimming bath for one family was established, they would be bathing with other people's wives and sisters.

But the Mayor of St. Pancras boldly added to the list "sweethearts." This probably will prove fatal to his scheme.

TAGGART GO WEST AND STAY?

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL HEAD-QUARTERS HEARS THAT.

Democratic Campaigners Won't Say Yes or Ne to a Revival of the Western Headquarters Story, but Surmise That It Came From the Enemy.

One of the chieftains in charge of President Roosevelt's campaign said to a SUN reporter early in the day: "I hear that one of the results of Judge Parker's trip down here is that Tom Taggart has got his walking papers. Judge Parker has agreed that it will be better for the national committee to open Western headquarters, and it has been arranged that Taggart shall go out and take charge of the Western end of the campaign. That will leave Sheehan, Belmont and Gorman to run things here with a free hand." THE SUN'S in-here with a free hand." THE SUN's informant would not say where he got his news, but added: "You'll find out in a day or two that that information is straight."

William F. Sheehan went to Ecopus vesterday afternoon to stay until Monday. Before he left he was asked if there had been any determination reached on the part of the national committee to open headquarters. He was told that there was a rumor afloat to the effect that the committee had decided to have headquarters in the West and that Mr. Taggart was to be shipped out there to take charge as to be shipped out there to take charge of them.

"Where did that come from?" asked
"Sheehan quickly. "I'll wager that "Where did that come from: asset Mr. Sheehan quickly. I'll wager that you got that from 1 Madison avenue" (the address of the Republican headquarters).

"But is it true that Mr. Taggart is to go West to supervise the campaign out there?" Mr. Sheehan was asked.

"I don't know anything about it; you might do better if you made some inquiries at 1 Madison avenue," Mr. Sheehan answered.

Mr. Taggart, when the question was put to him, also evaded a direct answer by replying: "Who told you that? Didn't you get it from down the avenue?" Like Mr. Sheehan, he declined to say whether or not there had been any conclusion reached in the conferences with Judge Parker to establish headquarters in Chicago or some other Western centre. other Western centre.
